TREATY MUST GO INTO CAMPAIGN.

Senate Deadlock Can Not Be Broken.

Washington, March 1.—Convinced that for the present their labors to break the peace treaty deadlock are a waste of time senate leaders moved today to get the treaty out of the way of pressing legislation and to let the issues raised by the ratification fight go into the political campaign for decision.

Under the plan agreed to and apparently acquiesced in by all elements of both parties, compromise negotiations on the crucial reservation to Article 10 are to be dropped, re-adoption of the Republican reservation program of last session is to be completed as a formality, and the final vote on ratification is to be taken to put the treaty out of the senate and into the campaign.

Some senators predicted tonight that the final vote, which will record another failure to ratify would come within the next three days. Among most of the leaders, however, the prediction was that the smoldering debate would take at least the remainder of the week to burn itself out in spite of general cooperation to keep it sharply under control.

The decision to hasten action was reached when the Republican leaders, convinced the Democrats would block ratification unless the Article 10 reservation were modified, determined to stand by their guns and insist that the reservation go into the ratification resolution without any change of substance or of language. In this reaffirmation they acceded to a demand by the Republican irreconcilables opposed to ratification who had intimated that they might adopt methods of their own to wreck the Republican program if they saw signs of weakening on Article 10.

The coup of the irreconcilable in thus bringing the treaty fight to a truce was a virtual repetition of the move by which, several weeks ago, they ended the bi-partisan compromise negotiations by bringing pressure to bear on the Republican leaders when an agreement seemed imminent. Holding the balance of power, their votes have to be counted on by the Republicans to adopt any of the proposed reservations, and in addition they are understood to have pointed out that if their counsels were disregarded, they easily could talk the treaty over into the campaign under the senate's rule of unlimited debate.

In fact a program of extensive debate already had been inaugurated by the irreconcilables, members of the group having held the floor several hours each day during last week's sessions. Under today's agreement they are expected not only to discontinue that program but to vote with the Republicans as they did last session in adopting reservations.

The senate took no action on the treaty during today's session which was cut short by adjournment on account of the death of Senator Bankhead. Under unanimous consent the vote to have been taken today on the domestic questions reservation was put over until tomorrow.
